Prayer Points

Thank God that in life's challenges we are never abandoned. God, our 'Friend', journeys with us! In the work of CrossReach, God journeys too!

Give thanks, for the depth of human care shown towards others in CrossReach projects. May staff know the appreciation of the Church for their work and know deep fulfilment as they extend God's reach into human lives.

Pray for all who work within CrossReach - contracted staff and relief workers - that together a cohesive team is created, driven by the vocation to 'love all' unconditionally.

Pray for the CEO, Viv, and her staff, as they build sure foundations and promote a spirit of togetherness throughout the CrossReach family. In all its service, may CrossReach extend the Love of Christ.

Over £2,500 raised!

The Adams House minibus fundraising efforts got a real boost when Adam Perrit ran an ultra-marathon from Glasgow to Edinburgh. Adam, whose mum is the activities co-ordinator in the home, completed the 56 miles run and raised over £2,500. Congratulations and well-done Adam!

An audience of one

Comedian Robin Grainger, who featured on the front cover of our last CrossReach News, made global headlines when he kept the laughs coming even though there was only one audience member at his Edinburgh Fringe show! Robin has since done 40 gigs all over Scotland and England and has even been invited to Norway, Brussels, Amsterdam and Lisbon – all whilst continuing to bring big smiles to his role as a support worker at our Threshold Edinburgh service.

Work with us

Welcome

Viv Dickenson,
Chief Executive Officer

A new year means a new edition CrossReach News! I hope you get as much enjoyment from this issue as we had in pulling it together. What is special to me is seeing the voices of the people we support coming so strongly to the fore to tell us what matters to them and to help us improve services; building a community of learning, shared understanding and a sense of hope for the future. In challenging times, it becomes even more important to us to draw together as a community and to share comfort, hope and love. I trust that you will continue to feel part of our CrossReach community as you work through some of these fabulous stories and pictures. Your continued support means so much to us all.

Thank you.

Listen & Learn 'World Cafe Events'

At CrossReach, we believe it is very important to always consult with and involve people we support in issues that affect them. As one of our core values, this is lived out on a daily basis in the way we support 10,000 people across Scotland. And now, too, through the new World Cafe Events.

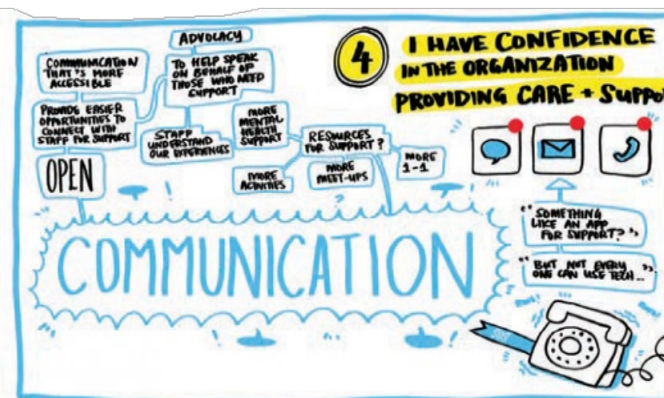

So far, two in person World Cafe events have been held for people who access CrossReach services including family members, carers and staff.

The co-production dynamic enables a coming together of minds and voices as a group of equals, where individuals are recognised as the experts in their own condition and experiences, and their voices help to improve service delivery and provision.

It is hoped that similar events will take place on a regular basis to encourage co-production as the norm and not the exception.

Our Participation and Involvement Group are encouraging more people to get involved with the events at all levels of the organisation.

During the discussions, an artist drew a snapshot of the discussions in a visually engaging way, have a look! ■

➔ Living the dream! What does that really mean? The answers are likely to be diverse and varied and for many, 'the dream' is a living reality, that is a grasp or two out of reach. However, for Philip Root, his life is the testimony of an actualised dream. Phill, who now works as a support worker at our Whiteinch Move-On service was announced as a finalist for the 2022 Scottish Social Services Awards (SSSA) Bright Spark in Social Care category, an incredible career achievement within the social care sector. The path of Phill's journey has taken him through experiences of homelessness, prison, addiction and the eventual recovery that led him towards a new life.

When asked about his work, Phill said with refreshing humility, "I'm one of the lucky ones. Some people have jobs - I've found my purpose and I'm living the dream every day". Phill's knowledge and life experience have placed him in the best position to support others: "I work with people in homelessness and people with alcohol and drug use. I came from these services. I came through this service myself.

When I'm working with somebody that I'm supporting there's very little they could say to me that I haven't experienced myself".

The SSSA ceremony was held in November 2022, and while Phill did not win the award, we all beam with pride for his accomplishments. ■

National Care Service Bill update

In our last edition John McDonald shared his thoughts on the National Care Service Bill which is currently making its way through Parliament. The Scottish Government are now keen to hear from people who currently use care services, have used them in the past or who work in them. This will help to shape the Bill and make it as good as it can be. Find out more about the Lived Experience Experts panel, here and have your say: bit.ly/ncsgetinvolved

Connected and Caring: Recovery Walk

➤ Paisley town centre was host to the Scottish Recovery Consortium’s annual Recovery Walk Scotland, welcoming around 4,000 people from all over the country.

The theme was ‘Connected and Caring’ and CrossReach service users, staff and volunteers travelled from Inverness, Perth and Glasgow to be part of it. Keynote speaker, MSP Angela Constance, said “the Recovery Walk is a visible demonstration that recovery is happening every day, in every part of Scotland.” At the Recovery Village, CrossReach joined with other health and social care providers showcasing services, making connections and enjoying time together. ■

“It made me appreciate my recovery and made me want to continue my journey.” – John

Revving up nostalgia

➤ R W Thomson Memorial Fellowship Annual Rally took a special detour on their route by driving past Clashfarquhar House in Stonehaven. Explaining the detour, Neil Smith, Fellowship librarian said, “We felt that it would be nice for the residents to see cars that they would, perhaps, remember from earlier in their lives. Nostalgia is a great thing, and it is something that all ages can enjoy. Seeing older people’s reactions as they remember cars, and by association holidays and happy memories, is wonderful”. Mr Smith expressed that “Clashfarquhar is such a prominent building in Stonehaven and there are very few local families that have not had association with it since it reopened as a care home in the sixties”. ■

Prisoners Week Scotland 2022

➤ The theme was ‘A Story of Grace’. The week celebrated transformation and we took the opportunity to share the thoughts and experiences of those who use and work in our services.

Polmont Visitors Centre manager, Sasha Groves, attended the launch service and called it ‘thought-provoking and challenging’ highlighting Jill Clancy, SPS Chaplain’s reflection on the Bible story of the bleeding woman who was healed by touching

Jesus’ cloak. “The isolation, stigma and trauma she experienced is echoed in the experience of individuals and families who end up in the justice system”

We also heard from Lilian, a volunteer at Perth Prison Visitor Advice & Support Centre who said: “I take home as much joy from the Centre knowing I have helped someone when I am there. If I had known about the Centre I would have been in ages ago!”

£10 could buy quality books for a parent to read with a child over an online prison visit.

The Dick Stewart service, supported accommodation for ex-offenders in Glasgow, shared two hope filled personal accounts from gentlemen whose lives were transformed through learning, reflection and relationship. ■

Heart for Art exhibition – Heart for Art at home

New exhibition

Getting creative with dementia
Across Scotland

The most recent exhibition, Heart for Art at home, displays work created by residents in 4 of our dementia care homes and one day care service. The breadth of talent never fails to amaze and brings joy not only to those who have created the artwork but also for everyone who looks at it.

Families of residents at Williamwood House, Glasgow, were so delighted with the artwork they suggested creating their own Heart for Art calendars. The calendars were sold as a fundraising initiative, raising not only money but also the profile of the talent within the home.

Taking the Heart for Art session into the care homes also earned the service a shortlisted place in the Luminare Creative Ageing Awards held by Luminare Scotland.

Dunfermline group opened

The Heart for Art groups continue to grow in numbers with a new session being opened in the city of Dunfermline. Held in the Abbey Church Hall, the group is open to anyone in Dunfermline living with a diagnosis of dementia. There are also future plans to open another group in the Morningside area of Edinburgh

If you have a relative who may enjoy exploring their creative side and would like to meet with others in a relaxed and friendly environment contact Paula Pinda, service manager on 07553 365802

➔ When the Moderator visited Adams House he was presented with a unique piece of artwork entitled 'Starry night'. The painting, featured, was created by resident Mr. Louis McBride, a participant in the Heart for Art sessions.

The Heart for Art service provides free creative art sessions for those living with a diagnosis of dementia and is a safe space for families and carers to participate alongside their relatives, or just take the chance to have a cuppa and a chat with those in a similar situation. Each session also has a dementia specialist present.

A unique feature of the Heart for Art service is the online exhibitions showcasing the amazing talent of the artists. Created in response to the restrictions placed during the Covid 19 pandemic, the online exhibitions continued to allow the artists to share their work with friends, family and the wider community in a similar way to the in person exhibitions held before this time. Participants were able to continue to produce artwork with the art packs that were sent into homes and CrossReach dementia care homes.

£50 could help facilitate a therapeutic art session for people living with dementia.

Thank you for praying for CrossReach

Get the App

My name is Brenda Fraser and I work for CrossReach, I have responsibility for 7 care homes for older people.

During the time that I have worked for CrossReach I have been very conscious of the power of prayer. Whether that has been in our corporate meetings, with staff before they start a shift, or with residents, the power of prayer has been very evident. It's good to know that at CrossReach you can openly share your faith with your colleagues.

The other great encouragement has been the knowledge that so many other people are praying for us and take the time to find out about our services. Many have commented on the value of the Prayer Diary – it is all very well to pray generally, but it is good to pray specifically and know that God hears and answers these prayers.

I am pleased to commend to you the Prayer App, it will surely help us to do as Paul commanded us, to pray continually. Though some people will not be able to support us practically or financially, everybody can support us prayerfully and become prayer warriors on behalf of CrossReach. We know that we offer our prayers to him who can do far more than we even dare to ask or imagine.

So use the Prayer App, and become a prayer warrior, and see the difference it makes in the lives of the people we serve.

Hold your phone camera to the QR code, tap and you will be taken to a page where you can watch a video of Brenda as well as download the app. You can also contact us (see page 2) for a free copy of our printed Prayer Diary.

Birthday cakes at Clashfarquhar

Care home
Aberdeenshire

Birthdays at Clashfarquhar House in Stonehaven are one of a kind. Relief staff member Hazel has been bringing joy to the residents' faces by baking birthday cakes, tailored to their interests. Ian, who turned 80 last year, was presented with a cake of himself doing what he loves most – watching Emmerdale with a cup of tea. Manager Tracy Bimpson said, 'That's just him!'

Working together for Recovery

It's been great to get out and about again, with our Substance Use Services attending a number of events recently. These included the Recovery Oriented Systems of Care (ROSC) and Elevate Community Networking Events in Glasgow, both their first face-to-face meetings since lockdown.

These events are an opportunity for groups and organisations who have an interest in Recovery pathways to work together under one roof.

Black and White Images

A photograph eternalises a moment, a memory and serves as a tangible freeze-frame of time – something which is of great worth to those living with dementia. A few months ago, residents at The Elms care home in Edinburgh showed their best smiles during a professional photoshoot with photographers, Peter Lawson and David Meikle. Each resident was gifted a framed photograph of their image, and digital copies to be shared with their loved ones. We are grateful to Peter and David for their generosity and kindness.

'Not enough people know the good that is done

The weather may not have always been kind during this year's visits, but the welcome from each of the services visited by The Moderator was hearty and warm, giving first hand insight to the transformational services offered by CrossReach.

Beginning with our Daisy Chain Early Years Project, the three-day tour included visits to services from all CrossReach Directorates.

At the end of the tour, Rt Rev Dr Greenshields noted his whole-hearted recommendation of CrossReach and you can hear directly from him by holding your phone camera up to this QR code.

Moderator's message

Daisy Chain Early Years Project

Daisy Chain Early Years Project is a service with a deep and unique insight into one of the most diverse and complex communities in Scotland. Situated in Govanhill, it supports families facing the challenges of poverty and inequality of opportunity, overcrowding and housing.

The 2022 CrossReach Employee Awards

The 2022 CrossReach Employee Awards was held in Apex Grassmarket Hotel, Edinburgh on 1 November, concluding this year's employee awards events, where the finalists and winners were presented with their trophies.

Master of Ceremonies Jason Leitch, praised the dedication, commitment and achievements of the CrossReach workforce family:

'I want to say a huge congratulations to all of you. As I shared at the virtual event there were over 100 nominations received so the fact that you have been selected as finalists is a huge achievement...It's fantastic to see people who are so dedicated to developing not only their own practice but sharing that passion and support to develop others.'

The Moderator said: 'This has been a proud and humbling day for me to be surrounded by people who, day in day out, go out of their way to show care, compassion, love and give support and energy to folks'

through CrossReach' Rt Rev Dr Iain Greenshields

Adams House

Adams House, a specialist dementia care home: all residents including those who have advanced dementia and complex dementia, continue to be key, valuable members of society with a real contribution to make.

Cunningham House

Cunningham House, supportive hostel accommodation for people who are homeless: Residents are met 'where they are at in their own journey' and the service flexibly and creatively supports each individual at their own pace, to address their support needs.

Tom Allan Centre

Offering high quality, donation based General Adult Counselling, and Perinatal Counselling through our Bluebell Perinatal Counselling Services. CrossReach is one of the few organisations in Scotland to offer more than short term counselling sessions of therapy on a donation basis – ensuring that inability to pay is no barrier to access high quality therapeutic support. See page 11 for more.

Whiteinch Move On Service, Glasgow

People are supported to access stable accommodation, connect to communities and to build their life skills through consistent, trauma informed genuine care. This small service goes the extra mile to provide a safe space where people are shown practical love and can experience and find hope.

'Your voice should be heard most loudly'

Claps and cheers marked the opening of the CrossReach Learning Disability Services National Forum as customers from across Scotland assembled together for the first time in 3 years.

The Celebrating Achievements Day got underway with the Church Moderator suggesting everyone got rid of his long title for the day and just call him Iain. He delighted the gathering when he told them he had been born in Drumchapel, Glasgow, even receiving a round of applause, but failed to impress with his admission of supporting Partick Thistle!

"It's great to see all of you here today and it's great to feel the enthusiasm that's here, to see all you guys taking such an important part in this."

Viv Dickenson, CEO and Vic Walker, Director of Adult Care Services, were both interviewed by customers Margaret and Russell who posed some challenging questions including where they saw CrossReach in 5 years' time. In both replies, the advent of the National Care Service and what it would mean for social care was highlighted.

Viv Dickenson said "The National Care Service will bring a huge change in social care, and there's a very important way you can help. Parliament is saying we want people who use social care services to tell us what they need for the future. You're more important, you're the people who use the services, and your voice should be heard most loudly."

The morning was finished off with a moving performance by The Makaton Choir signing "It's a Wonderful World" and was followed in the afternoon by crafts, music and pampering. A great day was had by all!

CrossReach School Careers Day creating a network of opportunities

Spirits were high at Erskine Waterfront Campus (EWC) as the Scottish Fire Service delighted young people with an impressive display of their life saving equipment – "The hose is so powerful it knocks you off your feet!"

With a diverse selection of agencies in attendance, including the SSPCA, HMRC and Invest in Renfrewshire, young people were offered advice and information on potential futures at this year's Careers Day.

"The Navy attended with a STEM (science, technology, engineering and math) van and a range of people in different roles, one was a female medic. Our student was able to talk and hear from someone who knew first hand and since leaving EWC in the summer, started a nautical college course at Glasgow which she will do for a year and then join up to be a medic in the Navy!"

Building on community relationships and extending a welcome to other schools in the area, Erskine Waterfront Campus is creating a network of opportunities for the children and young people to take part in to aid the transition from school to work.

Feedback from other schools that joined in has been extremely encouraging too, with one commenting that 'many of our pupils had meaningful conversations with the exhibitors that will hopefully help them plan their future careers.'

Attended by nearly 300 children and young people, the second EWC Careers Day demonstrates how CrossReach services are committed to the values of The Promise, by developing the young workforce of the future.

Emma Heaney, Employability mentor at EWC, shared the success story of a student who attended last year's careers event:

60th Anniversary of Glasgow Counselling Centre

➔ The Rev Tom Allan, a prolific advocate of social outreach, founded the Tom Allan Counselling Centre in partnership with the Board of Social Responsibility of the Church of Scotland in 1961 as a response to the growing social troubles of the Glasgow of his day. The centre was initially an alcohol rehabilitation centre.

Now known as the Tom Allan Centre, the CrossReach service has continued to change and adapt to the continuing social challenges faced by the surrounding communities. It offers donation-based counselling to adults and perinatal care to those expecting a baby or with a child under 3. The Bluebell Perinatal Service and Crèche was founded in 2006.

Between April 2021 and March 2022, the Centre has supported approximately 400 families and individuals.

The 60th anniversary of the service was marked during the Moderator's Time. He visited the Tom Allan Centre for the first time in many years and reflected that "It rightly is not the same. It's different, it's relevant and it's meeting the needs in and around Glasgow." ■

Supporting people in Scotland to live life to the full

At CrossReach we offer loving care to people of all ages who are in need of a helping hand, supporting them to live life to the full whatever their circumstances. We aim to show the practical side of our Christian faith by reflecting Christian love to those we support.

The Church of Scotland's Social Care Council is accountable for the work of CrossReach.

We have been at the forefront of high quality social care for over 150 years. During that time we have worked hard to understand the needs of the people who turn to us for help and with them have been pioneering services which have literally changed thousands of lives for the better.

Today we are one of the largest care providers in Scotland, with experience across a broad range of services.

"I'm in awe of the wide range of lives that you touch, especially where you strive to bring love, care, dignity and respect to folk who are sometimes marginalised by society"
